

OFFICIALS WANT PARK PROVISIONS

Will Request Owners of Additions to Cooperate

TO BE BEAUTY SPOTS

Private Citizens Are Showing Marked Interest in Improving Parks

City officials are to baffle or quest owners of plated additions to the city of Tulsa to provide at least a small block of ground for a park or recreation center. It is not probable that this request will take the form of an official order as there is some doubt in the mind of City Attorney Frank E. Duncan as to whether such an order could be enforced. His enforcement for the present will rest in the anticipated cooperation between the city and addition owners. Duncan's reason for doubting the force of such an order is that the addition is outside the city limits and the jurisdiction of the city until it is annexed; and that those who purchased the land have the right to do what movements and privileges because the company from which they bought their property neglected to provide a park.

THE size of recreation centers in these new additions is to be determined by the size of the addition as a whole. Officials hope that some of the park areas now being planned will prove to be so large that the larger additions may be two to four blocks. Numerous cities over the country have adopted this course and possess dozens of beauty spots that serve as "breathing spots" for residents of congested neighborhoods and especially their children, who need plenty of exercise and freedom in order to develop physical strength and bodily health.

N. G. Henthorne, president of the park board, is especially hopeful that owners of additions will cooperate with the city and provide these small parks. Even though for the present there are no conveniences being built, such as pools, tennis courts, etc., in addition, the children will demand a place to play. With the passing of years, improvements will be added, he says, and Tulsa will eventually be dotted with recreation centers and playgrounds that will serve every section of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children. The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park. Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Organize Farm Bureau.
Special to The World.
MANFREDLAND.—The executive committee of the county farm bureau, which has been operating for some time as a temporary organization, has decided that a permanent organization should be effected and permanent officers elected. To that end a meeting at the courthouse has been called for next Saturday afternoon, at which only paid-up members will be allowed to vote.

Tourist Park a Boon.
ENID, May 31.—There were tourists from eight different states en route to the beauty of the new park arranged especially for them, this week. There are 60 miles running into Enid and after long hours of travel, a cool, comfortable resting place with all necessary equipment to camp right is a delight to a motorist.

Two Weeks at Scam Camp.
Special to The World.
EL PASO, TEXAS.—The boy scouts are off for their glorious two weeks' camp at the 191 ranch. The council decided before going that visitors to the camp would be charged 50 cents for their meals and Charles Whately is to notify them by wireless of the arrival of guests, thus keeping in touch with the boys.

Gates Appeal Put Off.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 31.—The petition for a habeas corpus will be filed by attorneys for Lynn A. Gale, charged with desertion from the United States army, set for hearing before United States Judge Duval West today, was continued until June 3 on application of the defendant's attorneys.

Graduate Gets Scholarship.
Special to The World.
ENID.—May 31.—The scholarship offered by the Women's Pan-American Club, which includes the name of France, to one graduate of this year's class at high school, Miss Stevens, if she so elects, may have four years at Norman.

THEATERS

FIELD—The House That Jack Built—With Vienna Hobart, who is now

RETHA—Some Stories in Old People's Tales—One of the best shows of the week, and a double bill.

BIGEAL—One Man in a Million with George Duran and a Musical Comedy Company and other features.

BROADWAY—The Drifters with George Hamilton, Edgar Cawelti, and others. Double bill with Harry Holtzman.

LYRIC—Jack Brown in "Dishonest Jack," Western Play, Star Box Office, Special Features, Hall, Room 1000, Second Avenue and Thirty-first Street.

H. & M.—A big musical comedy company, comedy and other features.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Absence of cotton exchanges if they cannot be regulated adequately by law, was advocated by United States senator J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama in an address today before a national convention of American cotton growers.

"Cotton is being given a bad name," he said. "I am not so much in favor of having a national exchange, but the delegates should feel free to decide."

If the cotton exchange cannot be regulated, Senator Heflin advised, "I suggest that we have a national exchange. However, Southern cotton buyers exchange is still better than none, and more than 90 per cent of just as good cotton is being sold."

MARSHALL—A musical comedy by Fred and Barbara Woods, and with Eddie Geissler, Nellie O'Neil, and Eddie the Music Man. Music by Eddie and Eddie.

BURIAL IS VERY IMPRESSIVE

Regular Military Funeral Observed Over Body of Hero.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 31.—The burial of the body of Eddie McFarland, who was killed on the French front during the war, featured Memorial day observance yesterday. The American Legion's ladies auxiliary, Spanish-American Legion veterans and Eddie's widow, Mrs. Nellie McFarland, joined in a mass meeting at the city armory room with Dr. L. N. McHugh, president of Phillips university of Enid as the principal speaker. All the ministers of the city were on the program.

The body of McFarland, picked up at a casket drawn by four horses, mounted to the armory room, was escorted by the American Legion firing squad with the chapter of commerce band leading. Practically all members of the band are former service men. General Wilson, stand of native B. High, tenth field artillery, accompanied the body of McFarland from Enid and remained to be honored as the director representative of the United States army. All business houses closed during the afternoon.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.

The movement started by Frank H. Reed, who donated a wading pool at Locust park, is spreading. He expects to donate another pool to Admiral park, and Eddie Lyons is to provide one for Central park.

Although the Locust park pool has not yet been officially dedicated, it is virtually filled each evening with children who live in the southeast part of the city.

Private citizens have recently shown marked interest in locating and especially in providing amusements and recreation for children.